

Daniel is a college freshman who is now facing one of the big challenges of college: figuring out what and how to eat.

At home Daniel is used to eating a balanced and healthy diet, and he also can be a picky eater sometimes

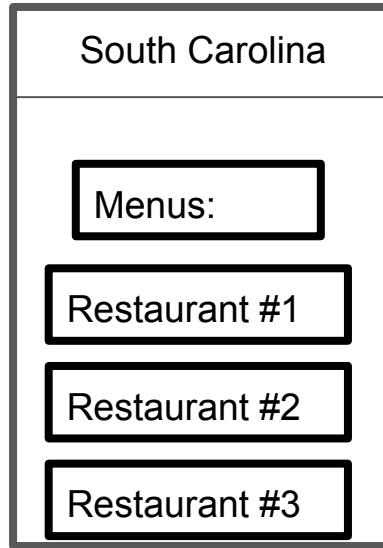

Daniel is struggling to adjust to college eating and has a hard time finding food that is healthy and that he likes

Daniel has decided to try to use an app to figure out where on campus he can go to find food that he both likes and that is good for him, making his college transition a little easier

This app shows him the current and future menus at all restaurants so that Daniel can pick where he wants to go before he gets there

Using the app, Daniel is able to make much better and healthier dining choices, which helps make the college transition much easier for him
